ST. MARK'S CHURCH NOTES.

Easter day, the queen festival of the ecclesiastical year, has since the very foundation of Christianity been kept in honor of our Lord's resurrection, and among western Christians reception was observed in St. Mark's Church, as in past years with becoming bright and joyous services. The sanctuary, and entrance to the choir, the altar, front, etc., was most tastefully adorned with plants in bloom; among which the calla lily, arysles, and legions was especially noticeable, with flowers and choice foliage, fit emblems of nature's yearly resurrection. The full choir, supplemented for the day by the welcome aid of several former members, rendered at both services; the selections of Easter under the zealous direction of choir master Fowkes, music in a manner worth all praise. Miss Mabel Knapp presided at the organ. The communicants numbered nearly one hundred.

The liberal offering of $125 was given throughout the day. Not the least enjoyable of the services was the annual Sunday school Easter festival at 3 p.m. when the juvenile choir rendered most effectively a sacred cata "The Triumph of Hope", comprising Easter Carols, Psalms etc., Miss Goss acted as organist and Fowkes as conductor.

The Rector presiding in the morning and the Assistant in the evening. At the evening service the proper Psalms were very smoothly chantered, and the second canticle "God be merciful unto us" seemed to your reporter particularly well rendered as also the anthems etc.

The annual Easter Monday vestry meeting was well attended and characterized by the feeling of unity and a desire to promote the church's welfare. The total receipts were verbally reported at about $1525 with expenditures of a like amount. The audited accounts will be presented at the adjourned meeting to be held on Thursday the 13th. The financial statement was considered very satisfactory. The following church officers and committees were appointed for the current year: Rector's Warden, James Sex-smith; People's Warden, T. H. Nasmith; Lay Deacons, E. A. Riven; Lay Deacons,
T. H. Nasmith, W. H. Nasmith, W. H. Nasmith, Egar, Edward Willard; Finance Committee,
R. H. Irvine, J. Hoppes, Sr., W. G. Egar,
A. H. McCaughey, W. M. Maylor, Wm.
Irvine; Stewards, Messrs. Thos. Nayler, Wm.
Hall, E. T. Davey, Gordon Rayburn, R.
Carroll and Geo. Egar, Jr.; Organist, Miss Mabel Knapp; and the Ladies' Aid Society.

It was resolved to hold their annual sale of work as usual in the month of June.

The Rector and Mrs. Stanton hospitably entertained the vestry on Tuesday evening.

Some portions of the Easter music will probably be repeated on next Sunday as the church festivals always extend to cover the octave.

VESTRY MEETING AT CHRIST CHURCH, RESERVE.

At all members of the vestry assembled for business. The incumbent acted the chair and opened the meeting with prayer. The minutes of the last vestry had been read when a number came in who the chairman ruled were not qualified vestrymen according to his interpretation of the canon. A discussion arose, when a motion for adjournment was proposed, awaiting the decision of the chancellor of the diocese as to the legality of non-attendees at public worship voting.
An amendment, though offered, was not put, coming as it did from those whose votes were questioned. The motion to adjourn was carried and the members of the vestry retired. The opposite party subsequently held a meeting and transacted business which was held to be illegal.
The adjourned meeting will be held at Christ church on Wednesday, the 12th inst., at 2 p.m. It is hoped the chancellor's decision will have been received. The canon of the synod of the Diocese of Ontario provides that in churches in which the laity are permitted to participate in the sacraments and sittings are free there shall be a vestry for the purposes of this canon, and the members thereof shall be of the full age of twenty-one years; and each such member shall declare himself in writing, at the meeting, in a book to be kept for that purpose, to be a member of the Church of England and of no other religious body, and to be habitually attending public worship in the said church of which the vestry is held for the parish or six months previous to the meeting of the vestry.

SALLY DOWS, AN AFTER-WAR ROMANCE OF THE SOUND BY BRET HARTE

Copyright, 1892, by the Author.

CHAPTER V.

THE house occupied by the manager of the Drummond syndicate in Reidsdale—the former residence of a local lawyer—was not large, but had an imposing portico of wooden doric columns, which extended to the roof and fronted the main street. The all-permeable creeper closely covered it; the sidewalk before it was shaded by a row of broad-leaved albes. The front porch, with French windows opening on the portico, was used by Col. Courtland as a general office; beyond this a sitting-room and dining-room overlooked the old-fashioned garden with its detached kitchen and inevitable negro cabin. It was a clear evening; there were dark clouds coming up in the direction of the turnpike road, but the leaves of the mimulus hung heavy and motionless in the hush of the impending storm. The sparks of lazily floating fireflies softly expanded and went out in the gloom of the black foliage, or in the dark shadows of the office, whose windows were widely open, and whose lights Courtland extinguished when he brought his armchair to the portico for coolness. One of these sparks, however, indicated, although apparently glowing and paling, was still so persistent and stationary that Courtland leaned forward to watch it more closely. At which it disappeared and a voice from the street said: "Is that you, Courtland?"

"Yes, come in, won't you?" The voice was Champney's and the light was from his cigar. As he opened the gate and came slowly up the steps of the portico the usual hesitation of his manner seemed to have increased. A long sigh thrilled the limp leaves of the allanias and as quickly subsided. A few heavy perpendiculars of rain crashed and splattered through the foliage like mallets.

"You've just escaped the shower," said Courtland, pleasantly. He had not seen Champney since he started in the cemetery, six weeks before.

"Yes, I—I thought I'd like to have a little talk with you, Courtland," said Champney. He hesitated a moment before he proffered the cigar, and added, with a cautious glance towards the street: "Hadn't we better go inside?"

"As you like. But you'll find it woefully hot. We're quite alone here; there's nobody in the house and this shower will drive any loungers from the street." He was quite frank, although their relations to each other in regard to Miss Sally were still so undefined as to scarcely invite his confidence.

Howbeit Champney took the proffered chair and the glass of juice which Courtland brought him.

"You remember my speaking to you of 'Dumont'?"

"Miss Dows' French cousin, you know? Well—he's coming here; he's got property here—those three houses opposite the courthouse. From what I hear of his coming over, every man and French ideas on the nigger question, not about equality and fraternity, don't you know—and the highest education and highest offices of the state, and what the feeling is for them. You know what happened at the last election at Coldville; how the whites couldn't let the niggers go to the polls and the jolly rowdies that were kicked over it. Well, it looks as if that sort of thing might happen here, don't you know, if Miss Dows takes up these ideas."

"But I've reason to suppose—I mean," said Courtland, correcting himself on some deliberation, "that anyone who knows Miss Dows' opinions knows she's not her views. Why should she take them up?"

"Because she takes him up," returned Champney, hurriedly, "and even if she didn't believe in them herself, she'd have to share the responsibility with him in the eyes of the community. I've seen rowdy like Tom Higbee and other fellows who don't make short work of her niggers all the same."

"But I don't see why any man should be made responsible for the views of his cousin, nor do I exactly know what 'taking him up' means," returned Courtland, quietly.

Champney moistened his lips with the juice and uttered a nervous laugh. "Suppose we say her husband, for that's what his coming back here means. Everybody knows that you would too, if you ever talked with her about anything but business."

A bright flash of lightning that lit up the faces of the two men would have revealed Champney's flushed features and Courtland's lack of color, but they were not, and the long reverberating crash of thunder which followed prevented any audible reply from Courtland, and covered his agitation.

For without fully accepting Champney's conclusion he was cruelly shocked at the young man's utterance of the views of Miss Sally and had faithfully—although never hopelessly—held back any expression of his own love since their conversation in the cemetery. But while his native truthfulness and sense of honor had overlooked the seeming indecorum of her attitude towards Champney, he never satisfied his own tacit participation in it, and the concealment of his own pretensions before his possible rival. It was true that he had forbidden him to openly enter the lists with her admirers, but Champney's innocent assumption of his indifference to her and his consequent half confidences added poignancy to his story. There seemed to be only one way to extricate himself and that was by a quarrel. Whether he did or did not believe in Champney's story, whether it was only the jealous exaggeration of a rival or Miss Sally was actually deceiving them both—his position had become intolerable.

"I must remind you, Champney," he said, with freezing deliberation, "that Miss Miranda Dows and her niece now represent the Drummond Company equally with myself, and you cannot expect me to listen to any delusions upon the way they choose to administer their part of its affairs, either now or to come. Still less do I care to be involved in the petty quarrels of the private interests of these ladies—with which neither you nor I have any right to interfere."

But the salubrity of the young Englishman was so evident to Miss Sally's own, and as fatal to Courtland's attitude. "Of course I haven't any right, you know," he said, calmly ignoring the preamble of his companion's speech, "but I say—half all—every fellow has no chance himself he don't like to see a girl throw herself and her property away on a man like that."

"One moment, Champney," said Courtland, under the infection of his guest's simplicity, abandoning his former superior attitude. "You may say you have no chance. Do you wish me to understand that you are regularly a suitor of Miss Dows?"

"Y-e-e-s," said the young fellow—but with the hesitation of conscientiousness rather than evasion. "That is—you know I say, but don't you see I couldn't be—it wouldn't do, you know. If those clamorous neighbors of hers—that southern set—suspected that Miss Sally was courted by an Englishman, don't you know—a poacher on their preserves—it would be all up with her position on the property and her influence over them. I don't mind telling you that's one reason why I left the company and took that other plantation. But even that didn't work with their suspicions excited already."

"Did Miss Dows give that as a reason for declining your suit?" asked Courtland, slowly.

"Yes, you know what a straightforward girl she is. She didn't come no rot about 'not expecting anything of the kind' or 'being a sister to me,' and all that, for, by Jove, she's always mooning like a fellow's sister, don't you know, that his girl. Of course it was hard lines for me, but I suppose she was about right." He stopped and then added with a kind of gentle reproach: "I think she was about right—don't you?"

With what was passing in Courtland's mind, the question seemed so bitterly ironical that he leaned half angrily forward, with an unconscious movement of attempting to catch the speaker's expression in the darkness. "I should hardly venture to give an opinion," he said deliberately. "Miss Dows' relations with her neighbors are so very peculiar. And from what you tell me of her cousin it would seem that her desire to placate them is not always to be depended upon."

"I'm not finding fault with her, you know," said Champney, hastily. "I'm not such a beastly cad as that; I wouldn't have spoken of my affairs at all, but you asked, you know. I only thought if she was going to get herself into trouble on account of that Frenchman you might talk to her; she'd listen to you because she'd know you only did it out of business reasons. And they're really business reasons, you know. I suppose you don't think much of my business capacity, Colonel, and you wouldn't go much on my judgment—especially now—but I've been here longer than you or any," he lowered his voice slightly and dragged his chair a few inches closer. "I don't like the looks of things here, don't you? Some devil plotting among those rascals. They're only waiting an opportunity—a single flash would be enough to set them in a blaze, and if the fire wasn't lit and smoldering already like a spark in a bale of cotton. I'd cut the whole thing and clear out if I didn't think it wouldn't be harder for Miss Dows—who would be left alone."

"You're a good fellow, Champney," said Courtland, laying his hand on the young man's shoulder with a sudden impulse, "and I forgive you for overlooking the fact that I could help them. Indeed!" he added, with an odd serious ness and a half sigh. "It's not strange that you should. But I must remind you that the Dows are strictly the agents and tenants of the company I represent, and under that tenancy shall not be interfered with by others as long as I am here. I have no right, however," he added gravely, "to let Miss Dows do anything that would injure her social relations."

Champney rose and shook hands with him as he spoke. "The shower seems to be lifting up," he said, "and I'll toddle along before it starts afresh. Good night! I say—you didn't mind my coming to you, did you, did you? By Jove! I thought you were a little stand-off at first. But you know what I meant!"

"Perfectly, and I thank you." They shook hands again. Champney stepped from the portico, and reaching the gate seemed to vanish and become a part of the darkness.

The storm was not yet over; the air had again become close and suffocating. Courtland remained brooding in his chair. Whether he could accept Champney's story as the true or not, he felt that he must end this suspense at once. A half guilty consciousness that he was thinking more of it in reference to his own passion than his duty to the company did not render his meditations less unpleasant. Yet while he could not reconcile Miss Sally's confidences in the cemetery in regard to the indifference of her people to Champney's attentions with what Champney had just told him of the reasons she had given him for declining them, he was not pained by her peculiar ethics. A lover seldom is, and Champney was not for deceiving his rival, and is at little apt to consider the logical deduction that she could deceive him also, as Othello was to accept Ibrabant's warning. The man's sense of honor which would have resented the friendship of a man capable of such treachery does not hesitate in accepting the love of a woman under the same conditions. Perhaps there is an implied compliment in thus allowing her to take the sole ethical responsibility, which few women would do.

In the midst of this gloomy abstraction Courtland suddenly raised his head and listened.

"Cato," There was the sound of heavy foot steps in the hall coming from the rear of the house, and presently a darker bulk appeared in the shadowed doorway. It was his principal overseer, a strong and superior negro, selected by his fellow freedmen from among their number in accordance with Courtland's new regime.

"Did you come here from the plantation, the lawyer?"

"The town, sah."

"I think you had better keep out of the town in the evenings for the present."

The negro shook his head grimly. "Then he wouldn't come, sah. No, sah. He knows dat Tom Higbee's bound to go for him or leave de place, and Marse George wouldn't mind settin' him, too, as well as his brudder, for de seors is agin' de Doomonts yet. And Marse George ain't no slouch wif a scutter gun."

At any other time the imminence of a survival of the lawless barbarism, of which he had heard so much, would have been a relief to him. He was only interested in it on account of the inconceivable position in which it left Miss Sally. Had she anything to do with this baleful cousin's return—or was she only to be a helpless victim of it?

A white, dazzling and bewildering flash of lightning suddenly lit up the room, the porch, the dripping allanias and the Godard street beyond. It was followed presently by a crash of thunder, with what seemed to be a second fainter flash of lightning, or rather as if the first flash had suddenly ignited some inflammable substance. With the long reverberation of the thunder still shaking the house, Courtland slipped quickly out of the window and passed down to the gate.

"Did it strike anything, sah?" said the startled negro, as Courtland returned.

"Not that I can see," said his employer shortly. "Go inside and call Zoe and her daughter from the cabin and bring them in the hall. Stay till I come. Go—I'll shut the windows myself!"

"I must have struck somewhere, sah, shuah! Deh's a pow'ful well of sulphur right here," said the negro as he left the room.

Courtland thought so too, but it was a kind of sulphur that he had smelt before on the battle field. For when he was close of behind his overseer, he took the lamp to the opposite wall and examined it carefully. There was the distinct hole made by a bullet when he missed the negro's head at the open window by an inch.

WITH CLOSED EYES. Beautiful Thoughts Expressing Truly Some Great Truths.

It is remarkable how much can be seen with closed eyes. Sometimes marvelous pictures arise and there are shapes and hues more fascinating than any seen at other times. Beautiful scenes of color pass and pass. They are strangely radiant that an artist might try to convey in vain to produce that won't be his brilliant. A shining city with gilded towers and marble palaces may be created in a moment pleasure grounds with fountains and charming waterfalls arise like magic and are peopled with persons whom you like to see.

The most striking and poetical exagérations of nature's beauties greet you; the silver dawn and the golden twilight; the crescent moon and her melancholy light; the solitude of the forest and the loneliness of the sea; the outline of a you feel that you know, although you may not have ever met them. There is something in their presence which brings messages of peace and hope. They restore faith in the spiritual conception of nature which was whispered to you so softly. With closed eyes these gentle messengers may be seen only, as though they were dwellers from that unseen world which the Swedish Mystic pronounced the only real world.

Nature may be so grand when viewed with closed eyes. How magnificent are the scenes which the heavens which are shifted beams of silver light; how superb the motionless pool which reflects so plainly every object. It is nature's softness and its beauty which is charming—the waving branch, the dainty vine, the snow-white cloud, the bright gleam of spring. Then out of the wondrous recesses a palace of art arises. Habitations come quickly to you when your eyes are closed. Men must always build and so the magnificent structure is erected, not story by story, but all in a moment and you are the ruler of the universe, the monarch, where peace reigns and the human may approach so near to the divine heart of nature itself, where the near relationship is felt for the moment to the animate. There one would not crush a flower needlessly.

With closed eyes the world is no longer small. It is surrounded by all space. It is filled with the fragrance of flowers more beautiful than have ever grown; with music sweeter than any ever been played and figures more charming even than any that are. The secrets which are whispered in your ear are the secrets of the universe; the music is the harmony of time and the tale that is told is the story of the fruition of all things; the strange life development; forms the most fanciful aspect; song, bright and shining, advancing in the courses prescribed in the attainment of the end.

Pyrology. In her interesting book entitled "Pharaoh, Fellahs and Explorers," Miss Amelia B. Edwards, who is an Egyptologist of the front rank, gives an entertaining account of ancient Egyptian notions of immortality. Man, emerging from barbarism, is like an intelligent child, full of curiosity about himself.

He is full of curiosity about his own existence, and according to his limited experience he seeks to account for that mystery. Now, the ancient inhabitants of the Nile Valley, as well as the moderns, were in a very elaborate and philosophical fashion. They conceived of man as a compound being, consisting of at least six parts, viz., a body, a soul, an intelligence, a shadow, a name and another element called in Egyptian Ka. The Ka was the immortal part, the harmonious whole constituted the living man. But they were dissociated by death, and could be reunited only after a long probation. If the reunion was forever. Meanwhile, being dead, the body lay inert in the tomb, the soul performed its pious pilgrimages through a dreary and dark valley of suffering, intelligence, freed from mortal incubation, wandered through space; the shadow and the name awaited the return of the soul, and the pilgrimage should be accomplished, and the Ka dwelt with the mummy in the sepulcher.

Miss Edwards says that the Ka to be the life principle in man. Being vital, it requires nourishment, and hence it was a matter of daily prayer among the Egyptians that the Ka and the dead part might be provided with a series of good square meals. Being divine the Ka was immortal. And around this the Egyptians built a system of religion, by which they hoped to secure the Ka. Miss Edwards suggests that this Egyptian word Ka is none other than the Hebrew word qel, meaning "life." It is the word which the Greeks borrowed their "vital spirit," as they borrowed so much else, from the Egyptians. At any rate, the Hebrews and the Egyptians carried out of Egypt even more intellectual spoils than spoils of silver, gold and raiment; were indebted to their teachers for their doctrines of the Ka, or life. They, in fact, borrowed not only the idea, but the very word.

A Significant Essay. Time is divided into seconds, minutes, hours, days, weeks, months, years and centuries. If we expect to become great and good men and be respected and esteemed by our friends we must improve our time when we are young. George Washington improved his time when he was a boy, and he was not sorry when he was at the head of a large army, fighting for his country. A great many of our great men were poor and had but small means of obtaining an education, but by improving their time when they were young, and when they were old, without the education of tender sympathy and loving partiality of youth, they were able to do great things in the world we must improve our time in school. —Written by President Grover Cleveland when nine years of age.

During the last twenty years the area of land in Scotland under the plough has diminished by nearly 2,000,000 acres, and over 14 per cent. The amount of arable land in Wales has diminished 21 per cent. in the same period. In Scotland, on the contrary, it has increased by 75,000 acres.
The difference is partly explained by the relatively large areas of land in Scotland planted under clover and rotation grasses, more than one-third of the whole cultivated area. In England the proportion of cultivated land so occupied is a little more than one-tenth of the whole.

A Large Load of Logs

paper from Renfrew, says: "A few days ago the largest count of logs ever hauled by one man in Canada, was drawn in by

T. Peard & Co. The logs were 14 feet long, and the load 10 feet high. It was loaded by T. Dunne, Douglas, J. Johnson, A. Doonan and T. Elliott, and photographed by A. J. May, of Toronto, who said it was the largest he ever saw. They loaded 121 logs, and hearing the highest record was 135 they resolved to do it and loaded 115 logs. This was conducted to the dump by H. Roy, a distance of one mile. This on graded and ice roads.

DEAR SIR:—There was a gentleman in the store on Saturday, who was speaking about Magic Pile Lotion very favourably. He had piles for forty years, and he is all right since using the Magic Pile Lotion. His address is Robert Graham, Middle, Road, High, Chatham, and a testimonial from him would be perfectly reliable and would do much good for your Lotion which has already an excellent reputation in this section of the country.

HOW THEY LIGHT FIRES.

FIRE BRIGADE EQUIPMENT OF THE WORLD'S CITIES.

Europe. Although Means for Their Establishment are Inadequate On This Side of the Water—Facts and Figures of General Interest.

Though we live in an age of cities few people have much knowledge of their except their names. This is especially true of the cities of the old world. A volume of reports prepared by Foreign consuls has just been published, which not only gives the building regulations of many foreign cities, but presents the facilities they possess for extinguishing fires. Some of this information relating to the more important cities of Europe and Asia is here given. The city of Vienna has 800,000 people and 13,841 buildings. These structures are almost wholly of stone and brick, there being only 1,200 one-story frame houses and only 1,200 leather buckets. During the year 1891 there was no case where a fire originated beyond the building in which it originated. The city has only five steam fire engines, but has many hand engines. The water supply is ample and electric alarms numerous. A reward of two florins goes to the person first sending in an alarm.

In French Cities.
The buildings of Marseilles are almost wholly of stone, the small number of wooden structures not being noticeable. The population is now 400,000. In 1891 the city had only two steam fire engines, but had plenty of hand engines and carts. Among the fire apparatus we find 249 leather buckets and 874 iron buckets. The salaries of firemen here do not compare favorably with those in Chicago. The fire marshal gets $600 a year, first lieutenants, $440; second lieutenants, $390; sergeants, $340, and forty-first class firemen get $300 and sixty-seventh second-class men get $195 a year. Paris, the second city of the world, has an area of 19,280 acres and a population of 2,434,705 and the suburbs contain nearly as many more. Most of the buildings of Paris are made of hewn stone or of rough stone covered with plaster, or of brick. A few workshops and sheds alone are built of lumber. Were Chicago as compactly built as Paris and its population equally dense, it would have 14,460 people. The city has 200 public telephone fire alarms and as many more private ones. The fire department is commanded by an officer who has no military and naval rank. He is a fifty-one officers and 1,693 men. The water supply is excellent, and in many cases the pressure is enough to throw water upon a burning building by simply coupling hose to the hydrants. Paris has all modern appliances for handling fires. In 1890 the department was called upon to extinguish 560 fires, and 344 of them were put out with water pails.

In Italy.
Florence, in 1890, had a population of 185,000, or sixty-eight persons to the acre. The city has no wooden buildings. During 1890 there were 158 fires, and they were all confined to the floors on which they originated. The fire department consists of 115 men, and has two steam fire engines and plenty of hand apparatus. Firemen are required by the municipality to be present at all public theatrical performances and at official funerals.
Rome in 1890 had a population of 430,000, the area of the city limits being 3,838 acres. The buildings of Rome are all stone and brick. The fire department is a military body as regards discipline, though entirely non-military in its organization. It numbers 500 men, and the wages paid first-class men amount to $6.68 per month, and second-class men to $4.83 per month. The salary of the fire marshal is $965 per year. Electrical apparatus is in use for alarms, but in 1890 the city had only one steam fire engine, and this is used so little and is so seldom brought out that upon a recent call it took two hours to have it ready to throw water. Buckets and fire extinguishers are chiefly relied upon at fires.

In Northern Europe.
Moscow has 750,000 people, and wood is used here for building far more extensively than in the cities of western Europe. The Moscow fire brigade is an old organization, originating soon after the great conflagration of 1812. The service is now voluntary, but subject to military discipline, and is incorporated with the police force and subordinate to the chief of police. The department contains 1,400 men, 450 horses, 100 water carts, 3 steam fire engines, 30 hand fire engines, with a large supply of ladders, buckets, axes, crow bars, etc. The men are uniformed in stout gray soldiers' clothes, and the officers in dark blue. Fire alarms are given by telephone, by signals and from whistles, and by special messengers. Water is brought into Moscow by means of aqueducts and water is not generally supplied to houses by service pipes. Houses are supplied by carts from fountains in the open squares of the town. Nineteen of the division chiefs of the fire department get $143 a year as salary, but they have few quarters, fuel and light. The average of firemen get only $65 a year, but wear quarters, fuel and light free.
St. Petersburg with a million of people had 774 fires in 1891, the total loss being about $600,000, the bulk of which was covered by insurance. The fire department has a thousand men, 400 horses, 14 wagonettes, 30 pumps, 64 wheel carts for carrying water, 20 carts with automatic and 15 with hand ladders, 8 fire escapes and 2 steam fire engines. All the vehicles are provided with sledge runners for winter use. The water supply is abundant from the street mains, and the rivers and canals crossing the city are inexhaustible sources of water supply.

British Fire Ladders.
The city of Dublin in 1891 had a population of 354,709, covered 3,808 acres and had 23,980 stone and brick buildings. During 1890 the total loss by fires was only about $50,000. The water pressure in Dublin is sufficient to enable firemen to get water upon burning buildings by merely coupling hose to street hydrants. In 1890 the city of Glasgow covered 6,111 acres, but in November, 1891, the area had increased to 11,801 acres, with a population of 656,185. In that year 504 fires occurred, with a loss of over half a million of dollars. The city has no wooden buildings. All the fires were prevented from extending beyond adjoining property. The fire department is not numerically large, but is very efficient and is well provided with steam fire engines and a good fire alarm system. The water pressure, too, upon the water mains in some parts of the city is 100 pounds to the square inch. In all municipal matters Glasgow is looked upon as a model city.

The city of Edinburgh, including Leith, has a population of about 250,000 and covers 7,388 acres. The city is built almost wholly of stone, there being only a few brick buildings and no wooden ones. The stone used is a gray sandstone abundant in the regions. A fire seldom gets beyond the building where it originates. From a table giving the years of service of firemen we find that in 1891 in the service thirty-six years, one thirty-five years, one thirty-four years, one thirty-three years, one thirty-two years, one thirty-one years, one thirty years, one twenty-nine years, one twenty-eight years, one twenty-seven years, one twenty-six years, one twenty-five years, one twenty-four years, one twenty-three years, one twenty-two years, one twenty-one years, one twenty years, one nineteen years, one eighteen years, one seventeen years, one sixteen years, one fifteen years, one fourteen years, one thirteen years, one twelve years, one eleven years, one ten years, one nine years, one eight years, one seven years, one six years, one five years, one four years, one three years, one two years, one year, and one new recruit.

In 1891 the population of the city of Liverpool was 517,061 and covers 5,809 acres. Its buildings are all stone and brick. Five steam fire engines were in use and eight hand engines and there were 210 men on the regular force. Five hundred and seventy-eight fires occurred in 1890-91 of them from lighted candles, from lights thrown down, 22 from children playing with matches, 30 from smoking tobacco, 23 from children playing with fire and 10 from sparks from fires. It is believed that Liverpool has the title of "constant" and have certain police authority.

London Department.
The greater of London had within its corporate limits in 1891 4,231,231 persons, and about 2,000,000 in territory immediately contiguous; 57,154 is given as the number of streets and buildings in 1891, and the city has no wooden buildings. The number of fire alarms given in 1891 was 1,169, of which 1,169 were false alarms, 243 chimney alarms and 2,862 actual fires; 2,699 of these fires were confined to the floors where they originated, and 184 extended beyond such floors, only six fires extended to adjoining property, and only three extended beyond adjoining property. The London fire department consists of 47 land steam fire engines, 95 hand manual fire engines, 9 steam fire engines on barges, 8 steam tug fire engines on barges, 8 steam tug fire engines on barges, 30 miles of hose, with ladders, trucks, fire escapes and an abundance of buckets, telegraphs, telephones, etc., to render the service of 208 firemen very efficient. Nineteen million gallons of water were used during the year, and one-third of this was taken from the river, canals and docks. The causes of fire are curious: Fifty-nine came from airing linen, 150 from candles, 100 from children playing with fire and 62 from their playing with matches; 61 were caused by swinging gas burners, 60 from escape of gas, 57 from curtains, 104 from smoking in contact with lights; 104 originated from hot ashes, 290 from spirit lamps (206 of them from smoking such lamps); 100 came from sparks of fire and 38 from improperly stoves.

On This Side of the Water.
The city of Halifax, Nova Scotia, with only 40,000 people, has a volunteer fire department 35 years old, nearly as many as in the great city of London. It has four steam fire engines, and nine-tenths of its buildings are wooden. Ottawa, which is larger than Halifax, has only one steam fire engine, and Quebec, with twice its population, has two steam fire engines and a paid fire department consisting of a municipal and fifty men. The town of Acapulco, Mexico, has a population of 5,000; the buildings are all of adobe, and the fire department consists of giving a fire alarm; no fire insurance of any kind is carried there and there is no department of any sort and no water supply for fire purposes. Durango, with 35,000 people, had three fires in 1890, and only one fire. The city has no fire department and no water for fire purposes. The place is built almost entirely of brick and stone, though a few dwellings are of stone.

In Buenos Ayres, Argentina, with 600,000 population, and houses are almost entirely of brick and stone. The city being not more than 1,000 frame structures. The city has a paid fire department of nearly 200 men, and being the capital of the republic the firemen are paid by the state. The city has three good steam fire engines, with all necessary apparatus.
The city of Havana in 1890 had 218,000 people, and covers only 2,027 acres, making nearly 70,000 persons to the square mile. Except in China, so dense a population is rarely seen. The 18,000 houses of the city are built of limestone, brick being used to a very limited extent. Fires are of rare occurrence, there being only fifty-five during the year 1890, of which fifteen only had to be extinguished by firemen. One hundred and fifty men are assigned to fire duty only.

In Asia and Australia.
The old city of Jerusalem has 45,000 people, and its buildings are all of stone. There was only one fire in the year 1891. There is really no water system here, and when a fire starts the Turkish soldiers take axes and cut down trees as they were going to a parade. They never run to a fire. They have at their barracks for use in city houses a small pump with about twenty feet of leather pipe. But this apparatus is never used, as they never have any water. When the soldiers reach a fire they smash up everything they can with their axes. As the garrison is changed every year, it is probable that the pump is never used. In a hundred years ago a fire. A photographer's shop burned in 1891 and did not even give an alarm.
In 1891 Bombay had 831,784 inhabitants and covered 14,248 acres. Most of the buildings are built of stone, and the timber framework for their stability, the spaces in this frame work being filled up with masonry, mostly brickwork. The houses having their external walls of plank or other inflammable materials are permitted. There are 33,389 buildings in the city and an average of twenty-four persons to a building. The city has seven steam fire engines, with 1,890 men, and covers only 150 men. The number of fires in 1890 was only fifty-five, and in 1891 fifty-eight. In 1891 the consumption of city water in Bombay was only 3,389,000 gallons a day for each person of population, about one sixth the average for Chicago.

The city of Hong Kong has nearly a quarter of a million of people, only 11,000 of them being British, but the element dominates and has given to the best of water works and a first-class fire department.
The cities of Australia have pretty nearly all their buildings built of stone and brick, and are mostly built of stone and brick and have 300 firemen, four steam fire engines, with hand engines, five fire stations and 71,000 feet of hose.

GROWING SEED POTATOES.

Before planting the seed, have the soil to the best possible condition and liberally enriched with manure. Choose seed large or medium in size, smooth, and of best form. Cut in large pieces and plant in rows three and one-half feet apart each way—four feet each way will be better. Plant about three inches deep. Three or four days after planting, cultivate by turning the soil to the row. One or two days later harrow until all is leveled and made very fine. As soon as the plants make their appearance, cultivate again, turning the soil to the plants so as to cover all weeds that may have started to grow. When the plants are about four inches above ground, thin out to one stalk in a hill. Continue the cultivation twice each week, going both ways, until the vines cover the ground. Cultivate shallow to avoid breaking the roots.

The best selection for seed will be from those stalks that produce the largest amount in weight. The most prolific stalks are the best to select from. A stalk that bears a large number of tubers of good size and form will make good seed. The improvement of the potato is an on-going and quality has to be the result of good seed. An observance of this principle has produced wonderful results. Strict conformity to these principles for all farm crops will produce as wonderful changes. Improvement of seed must precede improvement of the general crop.—R. S. TIGHE, Iowa.

They had been about two months and a half engaged in the work. He has not yet had time to compile the actual figures as to the number of islands, but he says that there are between 1,400 and 1,500 islands between the foot of Long (or Wolfe) island and Brockville.

A REMARKABLE LETTER.

To The Public:
I desire to give readers of this journal the result of a practical analysis and comparison of the medicinal merits of Dr. Butler's Golden Pile Pills, in the light of the results of their remedial properties may be set aside. In the first place they are not to be classed among the patent medicines so freely advertised now-a-days, for they contain the most valuable agents known to the profession, combined in such proportions as to ensure the greatest possible benefit. They are absolutely free from cathartics, and from this fact alone are better calculated to invigorate the blood and strengthen the nerves than any tonic containing one. In my private practice I prescribe them with the best results. The evidence of their value is abundant. I have seen patients recover from St. Vitus dance, nervous prostration, rheumatism, sleeplessness, palpitation of the heart, salt rheum, indigestion and dyspepsia from their use, and in all cases in which the system is run down in young or old I know of no better tonic than Butler's Golden Pile Pills. Respectfully,
J. H. BLACK, M. D.

HE WEARS A COD FISH.

A gentleman who was given up to die with consumption happened to receive a visit from a friend who recommended "Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil." Although having little faith he bought a bottle and before he was through taking it, found he was gaining flesh. He continued taking the Emulsion until he gained nearly fifty pounds. He is the heartiest man in town to-day. To commemorate his restoration to health he had a beautiful golden cod fish manufactured, and wears as a chain upon his watch chain. That is pretty good testimony for "Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil." Everybody is sounding its praises. In big bottles, 50c, and $1.00, at all Drug Stores.

THE SPRING.

Of all seasons in the year is the one for making radical changes in regard to health. During the winter the system becomes too certain extent clogged with waste, and the blood loaded with impurities, owing to lack of exercise, cold confinement, and a poorly ventilated shops and homes and other causes. This is the cause of the dull, sluggish, tired feeling so general at this season and which must be overcome or the health may be entirely broken down. Hood's Sarsaparilla has attained the greatest popularity all over the country as the best blood purifier and medicine. It expels the accumulation of impurities through the bowels, kidneys, liver, lungs and skin, gives to the blood the purity and vigor necessary to good health and overcomes that tired feeling.

THE DAM AT THE ELECTRIC LIGHT WORKS IN BYRAMVILLE GAVE WAY ON SATURDAY NIGHT.

The dam at the electric light works in Byramville gave way on Saturday night and the Presbyterian and Disciples churches and the Baptist church were deprived of light until lamps were selected.

DIARRHOEA AND DYSENTERY ARE PERHAPS THE MOST COMMON OF OUR EVERY DAY ILLS, AND EVERY PERSON NEARLY HAS SOME SPECIAL CURE OF THEIR OWN.

Our Dr. Perry Dainty's Kidney and Liver Pills are the best and most reliable we can confidently recommend it. Get Big Bottles 25c.

WHILE ENJOYING HIS EVENING MEAL ON SATURDAY EVENING LAST, A BOY OF 8 YEARS, WAS STRUCK BY LIGHTNING AND DIED.

The boy was named George. His father sitting near him was stunned.

"I DON'T FEEL LIKE EATING BREAKFAST THIS MORNING."

This is a common remark and is proof positive that the Kidneys and Liver are out of order, and nature calls out for relief. A bottle of Membray's Kidney and Liver Cure will remove the cause of all this trouble. Try it.

ALCOHOLIC DRINKS.

It appears that during the past year the vast sum of over $140,000,000 has been spent by the British Isles in alcoholic drinks and even this has been a small sum compared to the expenditure of the year previous. The London Hospital speaks very strongly on the untold evil effects of this enormous consumption of food as it is commonly called. The statistics of this country are calculated by one-fourth of the population. We are not of course aware of the fact that alcohol, and therefore we may speak all the more freely. Doctors, all doctors, know now that alcohol is a powerful poison. In large doses it kills quickly, woman, child or beast; in small doses it kills more slowly, but not less surely. Alcohol of any kind, however pure, is not a food, it is a poison, and its use as a beverage, any more than an infusion of opium would be. It is not a proper substance for use as a regular food, except in its very weakest form, and then not for all persons indiscriminately. There is not a possible danger anywhere but would I say that if our national drink bill could be reduced from 140 millions to fourteen millions a year the health of the people would be improved to such an extent that our practicing physicians would find nothing to do.

NEW GUN FOR THE BRITISH NAVY.

"The British Admiralty," says the Army and Navy Register, "has just adopted the new wire-wound, quick firing six-inch breech-loading gun for the navy." "The new weapon is forty calibres long and weighs seven tons. It will fire an elongated projectile weighing 100 pounds at a velocity of 2,000 feet per second. It is a quick-firing gun that at long range, when fired with cordite, it has three or four shots in the air at the same time."

"Many of the models have been manufactured at Woolwich and are being issued and mounted in ships in the British navy."

"The gun is wire-wound and each one has several miles of wire."

"Wire of the medium is stronger than any other. Wire is found to sustain the first shock of the force of cordite or gun powder without breaking. The long bore insures the combustion of the entire charge."

JAMES BLAIR'S CASE.

NAPANEE, April 10th. A highly interesting case has happened in this town, which is creating a good deal of comment. Mr. James Blair, a well known merchant tailor here, has for fourteen years been a sufferer from that terrible complaint, known as Bright's disease of the kidneys. He suffered so terribly that one hour work at the sewing table would completely exhaust him, and he had to almost give up work altogether. He tried almost every known remedy for his complaint, but without any success. His doctor, Dr. J. H. Black, M.D., told him that some named Murray, living in Gravelhurst, had been cured of kidney trouble by using Dodd's Kidney Pills. As a last resort Mr. Blair bought a box of these pills. The three boxes made a new man of him, and seven boxes completely cured him. Mr. Blair is back at work again, and says that he feels twenty years younger, and that these pills completely cured him. His recovery has created quite a sensation.

THE CREAMERY PROMOTES WEALTH.

Farmers, as well as business men in town, do not fully appreciate the effect on the growth of wealth in their midst which is exercised by the humble creamery. A fact or two may help factors the question. No one who has the habit of drinking cream, and who is situated within a radius of five miles of Fort Atkinson, Wisconsin, pay to the farmers annually over a quarter of a million of dollars. The larger factory at Fort Scott, Kansas, cost $100,000, and in three years paid to the farmers of the surrounding country $50,000. The twelve creameries in Dawson county, Kansas, cost not more than $30,000, and in two years paid to the farmers $425,000. An honestly managed creamery is a blessing to any community, and ought always to meet with generous appreciation.

DRUNKENNESS.

The Independent says: Drunkenness is a disease of the body as really as typhoid fever or any other physical disease. No man who is drunk at the time in the normal condition of health. His body is over-stimulated with intoxicating liquor. His stomach, heart and brain are affected. No one who has the habit of drunkenness, so that he freely drinks intoxicating liquors every day, is really a healthy man. He has an injured stomach, a diseased nervous system, and imperfect digestion of his food, and may have organic changes of the body. He is a victim of a slow poison that is constantly sapping the foundations of health and will ultimately destroy him altogether unless the habit is abandoned. The direct effect is always upon the body, and this one of impaired or ruined health, as really as if he should form a habit of eating arsenic or swallowing lead every day.

COMMENDABLE.

All claims not consistent with the high character of Syrup of Figs are purposely avoided by the Cal. Figs Syrup Company. It acts gently on the kidney, liver and bowels, cleansing the system effectually, but it is not a cure-all and makes no pretensions that every bottle will not substantiate.

It is really as if he should form a habit of eating arsenic or swallowing lead every day.

BURIED.

We stand upon the churchyard soil and gaze into the graves of our beloved dead. We hear the solemn words of prayer and praise: We mark the waving vine-tree near head: We see the sun-dial flanked on the grass: The green grass of the graves and daisies white: Adown the lane the village children pass, And shyly pause to watch the play rite. Deep in the earth upon the coffin lid Lies the last gift despairing love could make: White scented blossoms that soon must be Love, strong as life, was powerless to save. We can but strew fresh flowers upon the grave.

Yet in this grave, tear-moistened and new made, Where we must leave the happiness of years, May not the warrior sacrifice be laid Than even our fairest flowers or wildest trees.

If we should bury with the pure white bloom A cherished father or a sacred son, I might make holier the silent tomb, Deepen the peace the dead life folded in. Oh, mate, cold grave that doth receive our lost, And with our lost the offerings of our love. Take these things also we do count the cost, And God in heaven, death, looking down approve, Sleep, darling, sleep; pray God that dies with thee.

Which might have parted us eternally!

Simply Awful

Worst Case of Scrofula the Doctors Ever Saw

Completely Cured by HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA.

"When I was 4 or 5 years old I had a scrofulous sore on the middle finger of my left hand, which got so bad that the doctors cut the finger off, and later lost all more than half my arm. Then the sore broke out on my arm, and on my neck and face on both sides, nearly destroying the sight of my eyes, also on my right arm. I have had no more since."

Worst Case of Scrofula

they ever saw. It was simply awful! Five years ago I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. Gradually I found that the sores were beginning to heal. I kept on till I had taken ten bottles, ten dollars! Just think of what a cure I got for my affliction! A thousand per cent! Yes, many thousands! For the past 4 years I have had no more."

Work all the Time.

Before, I could do no work. I know not what to say strong enough to express my gratitude to Hood's Sarsaparilla for my perfect cure. GEORGE W. TURNER, Farmer, Glasgow, Saratoga county, N. Y.

How man apersons know that Ripans Tablets, now so largely advertised and used, are simply the favorite prescription of their family doctor prepared in a scientific manner and a form convenient for handling, conveyance, preservation and use? In the great hospitals of the metropolitan cities, where the wealthy find better care than in their own luxurious homes; the ingredients of Ripans Tablets are administered to thousands of rich and poor alike with beneficial effect. They are the main dependence of the most eminent physicians in cases of derangement of the digestive organs, such as dyspepsia, constipation, bilioussness and other ills connected with the stomach, liver and bowels. For some years one of the principal hospitals in New York city has used a formula, differing slightly from the common one, that has been found of unusual efficacy. Through the commendations of physicians its mission of healing has been so widely and rapidly extending that it finally seemed desirable to prepare the prescription in a convenient form, so as to make it available to the whole public at a moderate price, and to announce the fact through the recognized medium for securing publicity—advertisements in the columns of the newspapers of the land. This has been done, and now the time is not far distant when every family of intelligence will be as certain to possess a supply of Ripans Tablets as a clock or a cooking stove. They are already to be found on sale almost everywhere, and any druggist or dealer will supply them. A box, containing six vials, is sold for 75 cents, and a gross package, containing four boxes, for $2. They will be sent by mail, post paid, to any address, on receipt of price, by the Ripans Chemical Company, No 10 Spruce St., New York.

TYNDINAGA RESERVE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

A committee was appointed at the vestry meeting to ascertain the probable cost of a vault for the Reserve.

Our people appear to obtain fire water easily if we may judge from the numbers of men seen under its influence on the streets.

Miss Sophie Anderson, of the Parsonage, went to Hamilton last week.

The new officials of the churches fell into line on Sunday last and appear to be workers.
The remains of little Hilton, son of Dow
Clark, which was placed in the Deseronto vault on Christmas day were removed to All Saints church cemetery on Monday last.

Men carrying spears are daily seen along the shore going west, returning in the evening with strings of pelts.

Runners are rife about the resignation of Mr. J. H. Hill and the appointment of his successor. We wonder which of all the applicants will get it.

Digging and carting stones from the front road to improve the Deseronto streets gives employment to a number of our people.

A Shores has moved to his factory at Roslin where he will make cheese during the roofless the other day and did much damage around Tweed.

Mrs. Elliott of Ingersoll, died last Fri-mourn her loss. It was one of the most sorrowful funerals ever witnessed.

of John Preston, is suffering from a severe attack of dropsy.

D. Docher has a full roller process cracker, with which he does a very large business with complete satisfaction. It can crack seventy-five bushels per hour.

Most of the farmers have gathered up their sap material for the season.

Spring has come and nearly all the farmers are busy with their spring preparations.

The day on Thursday of last week blew the roof off Gilbert Latta's barn.

Hall's steam saw mill has shut down after a long winter's work.

John Shepherd last week went to the back woods to secure a number of logs for summer's

HARROWSMITH.

From Our Own Correspondent.

This village ought to be more flourishing than it really is, being in the centre of a very fertile agricultural area and nearly equidistant from and surrounded by the larger villages of Yarker, Verona and Sydenham, and just at the junction of two paying railways—the Bay of Quinte and the Kingston & Pembroke.

Notwithstanding all this and its good healthy site, its present limited boundary is not extending, nor is its stated population increasing, even with a low mortality and fewer bachelors than bachelors. Its census, within delapidated sidewalks, amounts to about 140 souls plus one almsman, minus the immortal part of its present; but this number is, just now, somewhat augmented by a lot of alien laborers operating in the construction of the four or five mile branch of railway that will, in the coming fall, connect this village with that of Sydenham, in most ways similarly circumstanced. But about the village is not growing in size nor getting more popular as a rural cluster, yet it contains three temples dedicated to the incarnation of Christianity and adelpic principles; namely, a little stone Presbyterian a frame Methodist, and the township hall utilized by the members of the Church of England where they worship and meet on Sunday to hear Rev. Mr. Cooper, of Sydenham, preach and pray in his eloquent, pathetic and highly instructive manner.

Facilities are offered for becoming religious by Mrs. Joseph Benn, who has formed a mission branch of Free Methodist in her own humble dwelling, where the votaries of the humble persuasion can meet every evening to exhort, exult, revive and petition as their spirits inspire them. "Most potent, physical and metaphysical, to you Mrs. Benn. You always appear to what you consider good, both for soul and body, and if you don't always hit the mark, you at least aim a goodly aim."

Then, as an adjunct to these religious institutions, we have a little public seminary our only school, where the brains of the children are judiciously developed, and the seeds of intellectual and moral pabulum are carefully sown and watered by the teacher,

QUEER REGIMENTAL PET.

An interesting relic is preserved in a glass case in the Coldstream Guards' orderly room at Whitehall, London.

It consists of the head and neck of a goose, around which is a golden collar with the inscription, "Jacob, 2nd Battalion C. B. Grenadier, Grenadier."

It is called "Died on Duty." In 1835, an Irish boy of 16, named Jacob, of the 2nd Battalion C. B. Grenadier, Grenadier, was killed in the Crimea while every step he took was a step towards death.

One day the weary soldier who it was to watch the entrance to the farm, he held a flag and the soldier who was closely pursued by a fox. His first impulse was to have a shot at the latter, but this would have been a capital mistake.

He was compelled, therefore, to remain still while every step he took was a step towards death.

He brought the fox nearer to his prey. In the height of his despair the poor bird ran its head and neck between the legs of the soldier, and at the same moment the wily fox made a desperate grab at the goose; but too late, for ere he could get a feather between his teeth, the ready bayonet of the sentinel had passed through his body.

The poor goose, who was the last to see his preserver, rubbed his head against his legs and made other curious demonstrations of grief.

Macaulay never prevailed upon him to quit the post, but he walked on down day after day, with each successive step the more he was convinced that the goose was his preserver.

It is so happened that the goose was the last to see his preserver. It was winter time, and several men stole up to the sentry's post, their footsteps inaudible on the snow.

The soldier, meanwhile, stood up and down his post, and the fox was not far from being shot.

He was not shot, however, but he was shot by the sentry's bayonet.

Scores of citizens have expressed approval of THE TRIBUNE's hint to shop loafers in last week's issue. Merchants are not altogether to blame; they fear to offend. Still, on the whole, they lose trade by permitting a gang of loungers to be about while people are making purchases.

There has been a mild revolution in Serbia where the young king, who had not yet attained his majority, deposed the regents and took the reins of government. He is only a little over sixteen years of age. There may be trouble over the affair as his act was not in line with the constitution. It is likely that Serbia will be long before it blotted out of the list of nations.

The four milk cows to represent Ontario in the milk test at the World's Fair have been selected, and will be sent to Chicago as soon as a permit allowing them to enter the United States is received from Washington. The Grand Trunk railway report, just issued, says that the actual cost of working has been reduced, but that efforts to economize have been neutralized by a further reduction in freight rates. This disappointing result has been due to causes entirely beyond control of the board of executive officers in Canada. The directors look for greater activity and movement in consequence of the war in Europe, and every available means will be taken to encourage passenger traffic.

The large passenger engine in the world was lately tried in the central shops at West Albany, N. Y., and in a few days more will be sent to Chicago to be exhibited at the world's fair. Heretofore the largest engines used in passenger traffic on this continent were those in use on the Empire State express; four of them weighing each a ton or ninety-five tons. The engine which left the shops on Tuesday, under test, for the first time, weighs a ton or a hundred tons, and in every respect is one of the finest pieces of mechanism ever put in front of passenger cars. Some idea of the tremendous size of the engine can be gathered when the fact is noted that its drive wheels, four in number, are seven feet in diameter, and it is four feet longer than any engine now on the road.

Van Vlack, a very popular officer, is owner and captain; Alfred Hicks, mate; R. R. Norcross, engineer. The Varus has always been a great favourite with the travelling public and under her new management it is safe to predict that she will secure a large share of freight and passenger traffic during 1893.

A MYSTERY RECALLED.

THE STRANGE STORY OF THE VESSEL MARIE CELESTE.

The Ship Discovered by the Crew of a British Bark Sailing Without a Person on Board—Everything Found in Proper Shape but No Life Aboard.

The unknown or conjectured fate of the missing steamship Narcotic recalls among countless strange stories of the sea the mystery of the Marie Celeste, a sailing vessel that one day, sixteen years ago, left the port of New York. The Marie Celeste came back as sound as a dollar, but her people, thirteen in all, including the wife and little child of the master, were never seen afterwards.

As weird is the tale of "The Ancient Mariner," as supernatural, apparently, as anything in the imaginative creation of "The Flying Dutchman," as unaccountable as any yarn ever invented about phantom ships, is the story of the Marie Celeste. If the facts, as sworn to by the State Department in Washington, were presented in fiction or drama by some fanciful author, "Incredible, preposterous, unnatural" would be the verdict of even an imaginative reader or listener.

The Marie Celeste, which sailed from New York in 1877 for Villafranca, on the Mediterranean, had a valuable cargo on board. Before sufficient time had elapsed for the vessel to complete her voyage a British bark sighted the Marie Celeste about three hundred miles west of Gibraltar. No answer was received by the signalling bark, and the astonished Britisher bore down upon the vessel and with glasses made a close examination of her deck. Not a sign of life was there.

A feeling of uneasiness came over the sailors. With a crew of courageous men the Captain ordered a search lowered, and pulled for the deserted ship. When alongside they called for those on board, but received no response. All was as silent as the tomb from bow to stern of the phantom craft, which, with some of her sail set, was drifting slowly before the wind.

They boarded the vessel, but there was an unnatural silence. A thorough search revealed everything about the Marie Celeste to be in its proper place and in its proper order. Only one thing belonging to a ship at sea was lacking, and that was the most important thing of all—life.

In the sheets hung the weekly wash of the sailors. From the davits hung all the boats in their appropriate places. Every rope and every spar was in its place. Not a marling-splice was gone. Binnacle and compass were intact. Descending the fore hatchway, the Captain of the bark found a half-eaten meal upon the seamen's table. In the master's cabin lay the remains of an infant, the mother of which was also interrupted dinner were also discovered.

In one corner of the cabin was a sewing machine, with a child's garment still under the needle. A woman's thimble lay on one corner of the machine. The money chest was untouched. In its sacred place hung the master's chronometer. The mates' watches were in their staterooms.

Everything was in perfect order about the phantom ship that was lying on and on, with no man at the wheel, no sailor to haul a rope.

A Russian Dog Which Goes into Hypnotic Trances and Does Strange Tricks.

All St. Petersburg has gone wild over something new, a dog which goes off into hypnotic trances. This remarkable animal belongs to M. Durov, who was awarded a gold medal by the Paris academy of sciences for his original investigation and discoveries in the science of hypnotism as applied to animals and its effects upon them. Several tests have been made of the animal in the presence of not less a person than Dr. Ananief, of the department of the Interior. The tests related to the New York Record, as a person in placing several articles, a pen, a cigar, a candle, a chair, a button, etc., on the floor. Then the dog, having been thrown into a hypnotic trance by him, M. Durov questioned one of the audience, which consisted of several other physicians of renown and some newspaper men, to think about something and what the dog was to do with it, then to write the pieces of paper out and show it to the rest of the audience, excepting, of course, himself. This was done, and the dog having been brought in, what was the astonishment of the whole assemblage to see the animal go up to the chair, pick it up and bring it to the one who had been hypnotized. Another test consisted in laying several pieces with figures on them in a certain order in a clock box. At the same time several pieces of paper were put upon the floor bearing like numbers on each. The dog was then called in and required to place the pieces of paper in the same order as the cubes were laid in the clock box. This he did, to the astonishment of all assembled. The strangeness of the whole procedure is increased when it is remembered that M. Durov knows no more about what is being done or wished than does the dog, and is, therefore, entirely unable to in any way prompt him.

A Diabolical Soup-Bone.

"Yes," he answered severely, "I would have been to the other man. I would have been a prosy old married man like you by this time if it had not been for the medicine intervention of a soup-bone. Some months ago I was very much impressed with a little typewriter girl in our office. She was bright, pretty, had a dainty figure and wore such neat toilet that half the men in the place were more or less daft after her. I was too bashful to tell her I might call on her and one night over my late cigar I evolved a business method of settling my morning business. I would see the porter out upon an errand, and then dictate a letter to her, which she would deliver to the man. The brilliant scheme! But she was not there, and did not come in until 9 o'clock. Later in the day I overheard her tell another man that she was in the kitchen at her boarding-house had gone out to buy meat for breakfast; she entered the butcher-shop just as the butcher, in anger, threw a bone at his assistant; the cook intercepted the soup-bone, was filled insensible, and, being unfastened, she was carried off to the hospital. The boarders waited for their breakfast, and my romantic intentions were chilled beyond resurrection. The bone was a dismal failure, the victim of a contemptible, mean, little 5-cent soup-bone."—Indianapolis Journal.

For the Tea Table.

For all the pretty impedimenta of the afternoon tea table there is still nothing so popular as a drawn linen. There is a tendency to show less and less of the linen. Some of the cloths, doilies, or tea cozies are as filmy in effect as morsels of the lace. Old gold silk is freely introduced upon trimming of the tea cloths, and gives a particular richness; but other examples—particularly those worked in the favorite lace hemstitch—are left in the purity of absolute freshness. Behind the white linen, there are also applications of blue, yellow, and red, and the like, to the colored varieties it is noticeable that "grandmother's linen" is being more and more discarded in all the delicate colors. The idea of age is well shown in a night robe which is an exact copy of one over 100 years old. The exact copy of the golden brown, with the embroidery showing a conventional design in daisies, and it is worked solidly in white.

Eating a Pineapple.

There has been much written and said about how to eat an orange, but never a word as to how to eat a pineapple, unless, of course, the Florida Dispatch says, "As it is with a roast of beef so with the pineapple; no one would think of cutting a roast of beef with the grain and expect to have a tender roast. The pineapple has a fiber running from center to circumference, and to have it tender it should be nicely pared and cut like a nettle in each eye or cavity where the seed forms, and often, in eating the pine these nettles cause the tongue and lips and make the mouth sore. After it is nicely pared then slice the pine vertically, keep turning the apple and slicing off the outside until the core is reached, and then you can eat the fruit without fear of sore mouth and it will be tender and juicy and luscious, as you have cut across the fiber."

A House Laundry.

A laundry that is perfect in detail is the special pride of a woman who has a beautiful new house. The room I have in mind is also ideal. The floor is of white marble laid with wingers of brass attached. A peculiar feature of the laundry is the very large clothesbasket or kettle, which is built in the wall near the tubs and so low that it nearly touches the floor. As there are faucets for hot and cold water in the boiler, as well as over each tub, no water has to be lifted or carried, and there is consequently no wet floor. The floor is covered by a bright rug. This wash-room connects with a hot-air room, where the clothes are quickly dried.—New York Evening Post.

A Hungry Guest.

Rosini and a friend of his went to dine with Mme. P.—a lady of property, who under a show of liberality, harbored a natural propensity to avarice. The dinner was a very meagre description. At night, when the time came for the guests to take their leave, Mme. P. thanked the great composer for his goodness in accepting her invitation, and said: "I should be very glad, maestro, if, before you leave Paris, you would deign to dine with me at once, if you like." "I shall be most happy," Rosini replied, "and will do so at once, if you like."—Tablette des deux Charentes.

A CENTENARY OF JOURNALISM.

It was a hundred years Tuesday, 18th inst., since the first public journal was issued in the Province of Ontario. It appeared under the imposing title of The Upper Canada Gazette. The first issue of the Canadian Press Association thought it fitting that the hundredth anniversary of the first issue of the Gazette should be commemorated by an annual meeting of the association, with the first issue of the Gazette as the theme of the annual meeting.

The Gazette was a four page sheet, nine and a half inches by fifteen. One-third of the first page was taken up with the head-line. There is a proclamation by Governor Simcoe, "for the suppression of vice, profaneness and immorality," and the king's speech to both houses of parliament. The second and third pages are taken up with "Parliamentary Intelligence" relating to the British Parliament, for which credit is given to a Philadelphia paper, of Feb. 25, 1793. The fourth page is more general in its matter. There is an extract in the Quebec Gazette of Feb. 18, 1792, giving an account of the burning down of the dwelling house of Mr. Andrew Cameron, in the lower town market place. After relating the events the article ends as follows:—"It is but justice to remark (and in this Mr. Cameron joins) that even should the effort was made, on this unfortunate occasion, by the fire society, the troops, and all classes of citizens. The thanks of the British Parliament are due to His Royal Highness Prince Edward, His Excellency General Clark and the officers of the Garrison and the officers of the Garrison."

"We have had a remarkably mild winter in the thermometer in the severest times has been lower, than nine degrees above zero by Fahrenheit's scale. Lake Erie has not been frozen over and there has been very little ice on Lake Ontario." The subscription price of the Gazette was three dollars a year and it was published at Niagara by Louis Rye, a French Canadian. Its birth was exactly a century after that of the first paper published in New York. William Pitt. There is not a newspaper published in Niagara today.

DEATH OF MR. T. F. GIBBS.

ONE OF THE OLDEST LAND SURVEYORS OF THE PROVINCE OF ONTARIO.

Thomas F. Gibbs, probably the oldest provincial land surveyor of this province, being in his 81st year, died at his residence in the township of Adolphstown, in Lennox county, Saturday, Ontario, 15th inst. He and A. B. Perry, of Violet, who preceded him in his last rest by a few years, were conspicuous surveyors in the adjoining country for 40 years. Mr. Gibbs was a member of the Board of Examiners of Provincial Land Surveyors for a time and was generally recognized as an excellent authority on all questions relating to his profession. He has been somewhat feeble, but practiced surveying till about a year ago, when he became incapacitated by illness. He was a native of Ireland, and his father, who preceded him in his last rest by a few years, were conspicuous surveyors in the adjoining country for 40 years. Mr. N. D. McArthur, of Belleville, agent of the Sun Life Assurance Company, of Montreal, has been in town this week in the interest of this large company.

The fishery department will insist upon a rigid observance of its regulations in the Bay of Quinte this year. Parties detected fishing on Sundays will expose themselves to heavy penalties.

The attention of our readers is directed to the advertisement of the New Clothing Company, located in Geddis' block, Main Street. The advertisement is a price list of the bargains offered.

The Big Mill is about ready to commence operations for the season. The bearings, etc., etc., will be tested to-day and to-morrow and the great establishment will be in full swing on Monday.

A heavy snow storm set in last Saturday morning and continued until the afternoon. Six inches of snow fell and everything looked like mid-winter. The sun of Saturday and Sunday melted the snow. The weather continued chilly all week. An easterly rainstorm set in yesterday afternoon.

Mr. & Mrs. E. W. Rathbun leave to-morrow for New York where they take the R.S. Trav. of the North German Lloyd line, for Southampton, England. They expect to return to Deseronto about the end of May. Mr. & Mrs. John Bell, of Belleville, will go to England on the same steamer. All will be in wishing the party a safe and pleasant voyage.

The Oldfellows of Kingston intend paying a fraternal visit to their brethren of Deseronto lodge, No. 102, on the evening of Wednesday, 29th. The local knights of the three lodges are preparing to receive them in their hall, the Royal Templars have kindly given up their meeting on that evening, so that the Oldfellows would have an ample hall for the four work of the different degrees to be given that evening.

The population of Prince Edward by the census of 1891 was 18,999. The religious are thus represented: Roman Catholics 1,124, Church of England 2,839, Presbyterians 957, Methodists 12,000, Brethren 21, Lutherans 2, Baptists 43, Congregationalists 7, Disciples 284, Adventists 6, Unitarians 4, Universalists 299, Salvation Army 214, Quakers 511, other denominations 29, not specified 152. In Southampton with a population of 2,341; the religious are thus represented: Church of England 123, Presbyterians 219, Methodists 1,858, Disciples 10, Universalists 14, Quakers 39, not specified 10.

Salvation Army.

Kingston will become a provincial headquarters of the Salvation Army, all business connected with any of the corps east of Ottawa and west of Montreal will be done in Kingston instead of Toronto headquarters. Brigadier Scott will be in command.

Entertainment.

The members of Brant Council of Royal Templars will hold an entertainment in their hall, West End, on the evening of Thursday, 27th inst. A good programme will be submitted. Proceeds devoted to equipment of the lodge room. Admission, 10 cents.

The Deseronto.

The Deseronto is on her old route, as trim and staunch as any craft on the bay. During the winter she was practically rebuilt. A new deck was put in and all the machinery overhauled. Experts pronounce her very strong and she can smile at the heaviest seas. Capt. Wm. Skillen, a general favorite with travellers, is again in command; Gilbert Arthur, mate, and John Rice, engineer.

Protection of Bees.

An act was passed at the last session of the Ontario Legislature for the protection of bees, which means that no person, in sprinkling fruit trees during the period within which such trees are in full bloom, shall use or cause to be used any insecticide containing Paris Green or any other poisonous substance injurious to bees. The penalty for an infraction of the law is not less than $1 or more than $5.

West End Mission.

The building used for the West End Mission has been undergoing improvements. Petitions have been removed and the whole lower first formed into one commodious hall. This will be found to be a great convenience as it will give more room for the large congregations which the assembly, Mr. Lowe, the devoted missionary, is doing admirable work and is gratified by the local support he is receiving from the people connected with the mission and from friends of the cause in Deseronto.

Belleville Hospital.

The official report of the Inspector shows that during the past year 192 patients were treated, of whom there were 103 males and 89 females. There were 11 cases of typhoid fever and six of diphtheria. The receipts were $4,142.65, of which the Province contributed $782.00, and the several donations and bequests amounted to $1,477.65. The expenditure was $4,489.72. The Government grant for 1893 will be $7,101.42. The Inspector speaks highly of the institution and its management.

Portland Cement Works.

Thursday last week, Mr. Keating, engineer for the City of Toronto, and Mr. Rust, his assistant, paid a visit to the Rathbun Company's Portland Cement industry at Napane Mills. They were greatly interested in the details of the manufacture of these important works and expressed their pleasure and satisfaction with preparations already completed for this important branch of the industry. The Rathbun Company has taken the highest position in the public works of Toronto.

Navigation Notes.

The Ella Ross went to Picton on Monday and though there was much ice in that harbor she found a way through and was thus the first vessel to enter that port this year, more than a week later than last season. She commenced her regular trips the next day and was the first steamer to touch at Belleville and Trenton this year. The Varnum commenced her trips on Wednesday. The Deseronto made her first trip from Napane to Picton on Tuesday. The ice has remained firm at Adolphstown and to reach here we passed that point. The Reliance cleared on Thursday for Kingston via Murray canal, with a heavy load of lumber. A fleet of small craft is in port all ready to leave when the bay is clear below Glenora.

Casualties.

Marlin Maloney, a young man employed in the Deseronto machine shop, was engaged driving some of the upper shafting last Friday morning when he was killed in a pulley and he was carried round several revolutions. His cries were heard, the engine was stopped and after some time he was discovered in an inauspicious condition. His clothing had to be cut off before he could be released. He was very much injured in various parts of his body but no bones were broken. Dr. Yeomans gave him immediate attention and he is rapidly recovering. His escape was miraculous considering the nature of the accident. He was drawn through which he was repeatedly drawn by the revolutions of the shaft. Mr. George W. Kerr, on Tuesday, while working in the saw factory, had his right hand caught in a joint, losing one joint of the second finger, while the first finger was lacerated. Dr. Vandercort dressed the wound. While testing the big mill engine and machinery yesterday afternoon Mr. Isaac Scrimshaw, one of the engineers, was soiling some journals near the end of the engine when he lost his footing and fell head first about twelve feet amongst the condenser pumps and piping, unable to help himself. His cries were heard by Engineer Martin, who stopped the engines, and looking for him he found him with his feet in the air. With the help of Mr. George Gordon, he was extricated and afterwards he was conveyed home. His injuries were not serious; he received a few cuts on the head and bruises on the body. As he weighs 200 lbs. it is a miracle he was not killed.

ST. MARK'S CHURCH NOTES.

The ladies of the congregation meet to-morrow afternoon in St. Mark's hall to arrange their annual sale of work. The new Sunday school library books, 1890 volumes, have arrived and are being prepared for circulation. They appear a remarkably good selection. The Trustees are printing a supplementary page to the catalogue, and on the return of books now out, the new ones will be issued to those who have made such returns.

Among the notices of last Sunday was one asking such as had not contributed at the annual Diocesan missionary meeting to kindly try and do so next Sunday.

Copies of the Cathedral Faltier have arrived for the choir.

Next Sunday is the third of April; it is also the festival of England's national patron saint, St. George, and the natal day of England's immortal bard Shakespeare.

CHURCH OF ST. VINCENT DE PAUL.

Service next Sunday at 11 a.m., as usual. The Easter offerings amounted to $125.40, the largest in the history of the congregation. The present edifice is now altogether too small for the large congregations which assemble. The present church will have to be enlarged or a new one erected. The choir, Miss Maggie Edwards, organist, is steadily improving and is now a creditable organization. It receives instruction regularly from Mrs. M. Edwards. All the bodies in the vault of the R. C. cemetery, Napane, were interred last week.

METHODIST CHURCH.

The usual services next Sunday. The Pastor-officiates both morning and evening. The congregations and Sunday school here are very largely attended and the public will always be welcome and will be cordially provided with seats. The last parlor social for the season takes place this evening at the residence of Mr. J. L. Ferguson, Thomas street.

On Sunday, 30th inst., the Sunday school session will be at the close of the forenoon service, owing to the Oldfellows' anniversary service in the afternoon.

TYENDINAGA RESERVE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Mr. Koubler, of Napanee, is erecting a very handsome monument in the Oranbyvick plot, Christ Church cemetery.

Forty years ago most of the women on the Reserve appeared at church in sombre plugs.

Now the head gear is of the most fashionable style with artificial flowers in abundance.

Forty three years last Sunday since the Rector first officiated in Christ church. Then the responses were made by one individual John Brown, a school master; now they are general and hearty.

The Reverend W. Fleming, rector of Hillier, and his daughter were guests at the parsonage on Monday last.

August 1850, was the last Mohawk on the Reserve who wore leggings, the ancient

From Our Own Correspondent.

It is our sad duty to record the death of Mrs. Jonas Doyle, of Richmond, sister-in-law of the Misses Doyle, of Deseronto, who departed this life on Thursday 20th inst. The deceased lady had been ill for some time yet no one suspected that death was so near.

Grief for the untimely death of this estimable lady is shared by a wide circle of friends and acquaintances since she was respected and loved by all with whom she came in contact.

The funeral was largely attended with standing the bad state of the roads. The remains were placed in the vault at Napanee.

on the knee from some horses on Monday law, Mr. Will Brennan, at the Deseronto creamery.

only a matter of time.

will be held in the Methodist church here,

From Our Own Correspondent.

the man's ribs and he is yet under the doctor's care.

The young folk of this vicinity met at Mr.
G. Carter's on Monday night, where they

ALBERT.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Some of the farmers are ploughing, a sure sign of spring. The storm of last week and the rain that fell in torrents Thursday afternoon and evening will put seedling back a week at least.

Our roads are in a horribly bad state this spring. It is quite common to see two horses hitched to one wagon, neither of them driving the water and the body was placed in Folsboro vault. The remains were interred here last Thursday.

AN AWFUL DEED.

The excitement a few days ago among our residents was intense and everybody seemed to be on the go and with a most determined effort to get away from harm. The centre of the excitement was Eggar's Drug store.

Mr. W. G. Eggar, the proprietor, was the centre of attraction. The heretofore genial proprietor was surrounded by a bevy of ladies when he suddenly turned with a large pack of shares in his hands and commenced to cut right and left among the hundreds of styles of wall papers. He cut and slashed, and served all alike. He made prices to suit the purses and sold some of the finest grades of paper at prices not reached by any competitor. Just call and see him.

You have a room either parlor or kitchen to paper. He has everything for house cleaning purposes.

Mrs. W. Daly, of Nanapan, will give a solo at the I.O.O.F. anniversary service at the Methodist church on Sunday afternoon. The choir, assisted by Mrs. Yeomans and Mrs. L. H. Bennett, will render special music.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Rathbun left by the 4:30 p.m. train for England last Saturday, going by special car to New York, via the Oceanic and Suspension Bridge. They sailed from New York Tuesday morning by the SS. Trave, of the North German Lloyd line.

The weather has been very wet, chilly and backward. Last Friday and Saturday there was heavy rain and during the week there were passing showers. Yesterday a storm set in from the southwest and there was more rain. It has caused the grass to spring up by the wayside. Farmers are heartily weary of it. It is a standstill in their line.

METHODIST CHURCH.

Next Sunday the annual contribution in aid of the general mission fund will be taken up at both morning and evening services. The pastor will preach in the morning and Rev. J. J. Rae, of the Western Church, Nanapan, in the evening. This will be the last special collection for the year. The collection for the year is now almost closed. The collection for the year is now almost closed. The collection for the year is now almost closed.

Last Sunday evening, the Rev. Dr. Scrimshaw, a Central Ontario boy, but now in pastoral charge in the state of New York, occupied the pulpit to the gratification of the large congregation present.

Owing to the anniversary service of the I. O. O. F. at this church which commences at 7:30 p.m., the Sunday school session will begin immediately after the morning service on the occasion. Rev. J. J. Rae, of Nanapan, is the preacher at the Oldfellows Anniversary, and it is understood that a large contingent of the fraternity from Nanapan, etc., will be present at this service.

THE BIG MILL.

The Big Mill commenced cutting on Monday, 24th, and everything is working well. During the winter all the machinery was overhauled and the usual repairs made by the millwrights. The greatest changes have been made in the boiler room which has been entirely altered. During the winter the walls of the building were raised about ten feet higher. The old boilers formerly in use were all removed and have been replaced by new steel tubular boilers capable of carrying working pressure of one hundred pounds to the square inch. These new boilers and their settings are built to the standard adopted by the Rathbun Company which, as we believe, is the best maintained by this Company in Canada. The system of feeding the fuel into the furnaces of these boilers is regulated by slide valves controlled by the firemen, and appliances are now being prepared, and will be ready in a few days, for automatically feeding all the wood cuttings, shavings, etc., from the wood working factories. This method will in great measure supersede the handling of wood as in former years. By the time the workmen have the steam pipes covered with non-conducting material and the walls and other parts painted, the boiler equipment of this great establishment will not be excelled in the Dominion. The Company expects to be able to furnish sufficient steam from this set of boilers not only to run the Big Mill with all its engines, but also at the same time to supply all the plant now run by the five boilers in the machine shop. The engine room has also undergone an entire alteration, and is fitted out in keeping with the changes made in the boiler room. It has been thoroughly cleaned, painted and scoured throughout, and is now a very attractive room, which the engineers in charge will take pride in keeping neat and bright. The Rathbun Company have spared no expense in making all these improvements and it is hoped that they will be repaid for their outlay.

ST. MARK'S CHURCH NOTES.

The regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary to Missions will be held on Tuesday afternoon at the rectory when delegates will be elected by ballot to attend the annual Diocesan convention which this year meets in Kingston.

At the adjourned vestry meeting Messrs. Geo. Field and E. T. Miller were elected to act as the finance committee.

Last Tuesday was the festival of the Patron Saint, the crozier and martyr St. Mark. He is mentioned in the Acts XII. 12 as "Joha whose surname was Mark." He was on terms of close intimacy with St. Peter, by whom he was thought to have been converted to Christianity from the latter calling him "Marcus my son." He founded the Church of Alexandria.

Next Sunday is the fourth Sunday after Easter, and the eve of the festival of St. Philip and St. James, May 1st. St. Philip was one of the first called by our Lord. He was put to death at Hierapolis in Phrygia. St. James "the less" the son of Alphaeus, was a kinsman of our blessed Lord. It may have been from this affinity that he was elected by the other apostles to be the first Bishop of the church at Jerusalem, the duties of which high office he so zealously discharged, until his martyrdom, as to win the title of "James the Just."

The subject of the morning sermon last Sunday was the resurrection and ascension of our Lord. In the evening the History of Balaam was considered.

MARINE NOTES.

At Villiers, nine miles from Hastings, an old man named Christopher Walker, 75 years of age, was found by a boy in his abode. A handkerchief was noticed floating from his fence, and as the old man had told a neighbor that he would hunt a flag when he was going to die, the handkerchief was taken as the death signal and so it proved to be. Walker was well to do and very eccentric.

VISITING ODDFELLOWS.

On Wednesday evening about thirty members of Kingston lodge, I.O.O.F., paid a fraternal visit to Deseronto lodge, No. 102, for the purpose of working the degrees of the order. The visitors arrived on the evening mail train, being met at the station by a number of workers, who were escorted to the Foresters' hall, where the work was to take place. Tea was served the visitors at the Deseronto house. At 7:30 o'clock members of Deseronto lodge met at their own hall and marched to the hotel, headed by the citizens' band, where the visitors were met and escorted to the hall. Noble Grand I. Hoppine opened the lodge, when Mr. G. A. Egan, in a most pleasing, welcomed the visitors. The officers vacated their chairs, which were then filled by Noble Grand W. Burke and other officers of Kingston lodge. The initiatory degree was exemplified, when four candidates presented themselves for the first, second and third degrees. The complete paraphernalia of Kingston lodge was used, and the ample floor space gave the visitors an opportunity to present the degree in a most satisfactory manner to the large number present. The minute details of the work are carefully looked after during the ceremony, and the work has been made a special study, so that no good effect that can be secured is lost. The work was not completed until after eleven o'clock, when the visitors were conducted back to the Deseronto house, where over one hundred sat down to an enjoyable repast, to which ample justice was done.

Mr. R. N. Irvine was in charge at this stage of the proceedings, and proposed the health of the Queen, which was virtually standing. Mr. Irvine welcomed the visitors and expressed much pleasure in meeting them, ascribing much benefit to all after witnessing the work of the evening. District Deputy Grand Master A. T. Smith responded on behalf of the visitors and assured them present that Kingston lodge enjoyed helping sister lodges as far as they were able, and believed in spreading the work so well established.

Past Grand A. A. Richardson added words of welcome and was highly gratified with the work as presented and the good cheer of all present. Alderman R. F. Elliott, of Kingston, was well met for courting, and returned the thanks of the visitors for the hospitality shown during the evening, assuring those present that they will be welcomed to Kingston at any time.

Mr. H. Aylsworth, in his usual pleasing way, sang "We've all been there before," the entire party joining in the chorus. Mr. G. W. Wright, with good effect, sang "Monks of Old." Mr. P. C. Folwell, of the Commercial Travelers' Association, was present, and vouched for the cheer of the evening. Deputy A. T. Smith, who only sings once in five years, begged indulgence, as he had sung a few months since. The representative of THE TRIBUNE made the usual observations of the press on such occasions. "God Save the Queen" was sung, when at a very late hour the visitors were escorted to the train. The entire evening was spent by all present in an exceedingly enjoyable manner, all expressing a desire to visit the sister lodges again at an early date.

Kingston lodge officers as follows were among the delegates: N. G. W. Burke; G. W. Patterson, Per. Sec.; W. S. Sellers; T. H. B. Hinds; organist, W. Sead; Past Grand, J. Bullis; G. Lee; J. McWaters; and D. D. G. M., A. T. Smith.

TOWN COUNCIL.

The regular monthly meeting of the council was held last week, Thursday evening. The following members were present: Mayor, E. W. Rathbun; Reeve, Dr. J. Newton; Deputy Reeve, H. B. Rathbun; Councilors, A. A. Richardson, Geo. Farnham, J. Geddis, Wm. Evans, N. L. Love, and J. H. Hinds.

Communications were read from deputy-reeve Rathbun tendering his resignation on the Finance committee and from Legislative Council, J. H. Hinds, resigning as a member of the Board, as required from Mr. W. R. Aylsworth offering to prepare a registry plan of the town for $240; from Board of Health asking for $1300 for use of the Board, as required from the Dominion Alliance, asking the council to take action instructing the Provincial Legislature to prepare a plebiscite to present to the voters in the province; from twenty-nine rate payers asking that assistance be granted to a ferry running from Deseronto to North Fredericksburg; from the Ottawa Board of Health asking cooperation in influencing the Provincial Legislature to empower municipalities to issue debentures without calling for the consent of the rate-payers, for the erection of contagious hospitals and their equipments.

The resignation of deputy-reeve Rathbun on committees was accepted.

The registry plan of the town was deferred as it was thought unwise to act in the matter until the recently acquired land on the west end of the town had been laid out into streets and lots, and the matter was referred to the Town Property committee.

The request of the Board of Health, for $1300, was granted.

The petition of the rate-payers asking aid to a ferry was laid on the table until the next meeting.

The By-law meeting was given more time in which to prepare a by-law regulating the keeping of pigs in prescribed districts in the town.

A rebabate of a billiard license, to Mr. Wm. Hatch, of last year for two months was granted.

The committee on Town Property reported regarding the hydrants now on the streets and recommended the payment of $50 per year per hydrant and asked that the rate be added to the High school, west, and the Methodist church, east. The recommendation was adopted.

The Streets committee presented bills for work done and material used on the streets, which were ordered paid.

The School Board were granted the price of seating seats in the Town Hall, for the use of the primary department, until the proposed additions could be made to the Public school.

The Collector was given more time in which to complete the collection of taxes, and was granted $10 to reimburse him for expenses in connection with collections.
